“Thanks to the people I met on the course, I’m learning Spanish and have a new understanding and tolerance of people from very diverse backgrounds and cultures. I’m due to start a volunteer placement with Southwark Council soon and I feel like the sky’s the limit. If I get to volunteer at the 2012 Games it will be a bonus, even if I don’t, the course has given me transferable skills and experiences that will stay with me for the rest of my life.”

Games-time volunteering – a real life experience!

“I love having fun! Volunteering at Games-time is that and so much more. When I had the chance to volunteer at the 2006 Winter Olympics in Turin I leapt at it and I wasn’t disappointed.

I worked for five weeks in the Olympic Family Transport Services Team providing general information on Games transport and helped to organise transport for arrivals, departures and special events for VIPs. I worked with people of all ages with different backgrounds and experiences and I learned a lot about other cultures. I also got to see some of the amazing sports competition which was a bonus.

Without realising it at the time I learned a lot in a really fun way and have since found a job working in transport. Volunteering at the Games was the best thing I’ve ever done and I would totally recommend Games-time volunteering to everyone as an experience of a life-time.”
